Playoffs are going to start this weekend

Quarterfinal-pairings

Bayer Leverkusen – VfL Oldenburg (2010: LEV wins, 2011: OLD win dramatically \(without Geschke's save LEV would pass on away-goals\))

Frankfurter HC – HC Leipzig (east german tradition derby)

Frisch Auf Göttingen – Buxtehuder SV (the draw at Göttingen on the 21st matchday let BSV miss the 1st place in Bundesliga)

HSG Blomberg-Lippe – Thüringer HC

SVG Celle has to be relegated

Bayer Leverkusen beat Oldenburg this afternoon in the first match of their play off, next game is at Oldenburg on Wednesday. Four Oldenburg players got 2 minutes suspensions compared to only one for Bayer Leverkusen.

Score: 26–21

BL: Naidzinavicius 8; Steinbach 8; Glankovicova 4; Garcia Almendaris 2; Egger 2 and Zapf 2

OL: Kethorn 6; Van der Heijden 3; Abbingh 3; Neuendorf 2; Birke 2; Schirmer 2; Geschke 2 and Wenzl 1

Should be good game on Wednesday 😊

Fantastic match of Leverkusen. Well, both teams normally get less suspensions of all teams (both average 2 per match). Oldenburg showed nerves today and really got some silly suspensions (shouting to ref's of Kethorn for instance) return match will be broadcasted live at www.oeins.de

I watched all the games last night in Hbf-video site – of course only partially for they were played in the same time. Both Blomberg and Frankfurt was close to a surprise but none of them managed to do it.

It was only Leverkusen that could go on against a better ranked team.

Stream quality was very good from Leipzig and Buxtehude, moderate from Oldenburg, and rather poor from Bad Langensalza. The latter one stucked very often.

It's a pity that semifinals may be organized in the day of CWC final when I won't be able to watch them live.

In conclusion, I declare that EHF must be destroyed correct. Return match at Buxtehude is already announced too, match at Thüringen is most likely to be streamed, but still has some tv-rights discussions,

I've missed your team's game, I preferred EHF Cup final. After that I watched CL final and now Bundesliga semifinal second leg from Buxtehude.
I see Leverkusen is out.
